Radius Ventures Adds Dr. Sanuj Ravindran as Principal

NEW YORK, NY- March 27, 2007- Radius Ventures, a health and life sciences focused venture capital firm, announced today that Dr. Sanuj K. Ravindran has joined the firm as a Principal.

Prior to joining Radius, Dr. Ravindran was a Director at Burrill & Company, a San Francisco based life sciences venture capital firm. While with Burrill, he played an active role in several investments, including diaDexus, Proventys, Endocyte, Neosil, Cardiokine and Arete.

Dr. Ravindran stated, "I was attracted to Radius because of its extraordinary track record of investing - from seed through mezzanine - in a broad range of healthcare and life science verticals. But most compelling is that Radius has built a highly accomplished investment team that takes an active and collaborative approach to investing in and building successful companies."

Jordan Davis, Managing Partner of Radius commented, "We are excited to have Sanuj join Radius. He brings several years of global venture capital investment experience from Burrill & Co., as well as a west coast perspective and network. Sanuj's expertise deepens our strong and growing base of clinical and scientific talent." Daniel Lubin, Managing Partner of Radius added, "With the initial closing of our new fund, we are committed to adding the human capital necessary to continue Radius' emergence as a top health and life science venture capital firm. Sanuj's background and skill set will make an important contribution to Radius' investment process."

Dr. Ravindran is Board Certified in Internal Medicine and served as a National Cancer Institute Research Fellow at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center. Dr. Ravindran received a BA with Honors from Northwestern University, an MD from Jefferson Medical College, and an MBA from The Kellogg School of Management, where he was a Rothschild Scholar.
